

MIGRATORY GAME BIRD PROCLAMATION
EXTENSION OF EMERGENCY
ADOPTION PREAMBLE

1. Introduction.

Pursuant to Parks and Wildlife Code, §12.027 and §64.024, and Government Code, §2001.034, the executive director of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (the department) adopts an extension of the emergency adoption of 31 TAC §65.314, concerning Doves (Mourning, White-Winged, White-Tipped, White-Fronted Doves). The initial emergency adoption (48 TexReg 5209) was filed on September 7, 2023.

Under Parks and Wildlife Code, §12.027, if the commission or the executive director finds that there is an immediate danger to a species authorized to be regulated by the department, or that strict compliance with existing department rules would in any way prevent, hinder, or delay necessary action in coping with a disaster declared by the governor, the commission or the executive director may adopt emergency rules as provided by Chapter 2001, Government Code. Under Parks and Wildlife Code, §64.024, the commission may adopt an emergency regulation governing the hunting or possession of migratory game birds if the commission finds that an emergency condition affecting the supply or condition of migratory game birds exists, and rulemaking authority with respect to migratory game birds is delegated to the executive director under §64.022 and 31 TAC §65.313.

The department's executive director has determined that the dove season dates listed in §65.314(b)(3)(B) create an immediate danger to dove species authorized to be regulated by the department, and that the extension of effectiveness of the emergency rules is necessary to address this immediate danger.

The emergency rule extension will be in effect until January 21, 2024.

2. Justification for the Rules.

The department has determined that because the dates for dove seasons in §65.314(b)(3)(B) refer to last year, the effect is to remove bag limits for doves in the South Zone, which creates the possibility of excessive harvest, which in light of severe prolonged drought and high temperatures over much of the state, could result in severe impacts to dove populations far into the future. The department cannot remedy the situation via the normal rulemaking process, as dove season is already open and the danger to the species is immediate. Therefore, the emergency amendment is necessary to eliminate that danger. The amendment replaces the reference to last year's dates with the correct dates, adjusted for calendar shift, which is necessary to preserve the season structure for opening and closing on specific days of the week. The department establishes dove seasons on an annual basis and will address the issue via the normal rulemaking process during the period of effectiveness of the emergency rule.

3. Statutory Authority.

The rule is adopted on an emergency basis under Parks and Wildlife Code, §12.027, which authorizes the department's executive director to adopt emergency rules if there is an immediate danger to a species authorized to be regulated by the department, Parks and Wildlife Code, §64.024, which authorizes the commission to adopt an emergency regulation governing the hunting or possession of migratory game birds if the commission finds that an emergency condition affecting the supply or condition of migratory game birds exists, Parks and Wildlife Code, 64.022, which authorizes the commission to delegate rulemaking authority with respect to migratory game birds to the executive director, and 31 TAC §65.313, which authorizes the executive director to engage in rulemaking pursuant to §64.022.
