COMPLAINT PROCEDURE

Any employee who becomes aware of conduct that may indicate discrimination or retaliation is urged to promptly bring the matter to the attention of his or her supervisor or the Director of Human Resources or designee in accordance with the complaint process. If TPWD has knowledge of such alleged behavior, an investigation is warranted even in the absence of a formal complaint.

Managers and supervisors are required to report to the Human Resources Division complaints they receive or conduct they are aware of that appears to be a violation of this policy.
The purpose of the complaint process is to provide a formal method for all complaints to be documented by TPWD and to provide recourse to all employees with complaints about discrimination or retaliation. The process is also intended to facilitate objective review and resolution of all complaints at the agency-level where possible. The Human Resources Division handles ALL complaints of violations of state and federal employment laws and provisions of this policy.

I. How to Make and Process Employee Complaints

A. The Employee’s Role

- Employee may make a complaint orally or in writing to any TPWD supervisor or manager, or directly to Human Resources.
- Employee should cooperate in the complaint investigation process to assist Human Resources in identifying specific concerns, potential witnesses and other evidence and facts.
- Once the employee has made contact with Human Resources, the employee should only discuss the complaint with others in the workplace who have a need to know, to ensure the integrity of the investigation process. This does not prevent the employee from reporting concerns of retaliation or misconduct as appropriate.

B. The Manager’s and Supervisor’s Role

- Managers and supervisors must take every complaint seriously.
- Managers and supervisors must notify Human Resources immediately upon receiving a complaint, including any subsequent complaints of retaliation.
