Lower Rio Grande Valley National Wildlife Refuge

OVERVIEW

The Tecolote tract of the Lower Rio Grande Valley National Wildlife Refuge (LRGV NWR) is located in Hidalgo County, 20 miles west/northwest of Raymondville on Jesus Maria/County Line Road. The Tecolote tract is 1,119 acres and bordered by KingRanch/County Line Road to the east, and the old Hunke Ranch to the north. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife acquired the Tecolote property in 2015 and it remains under our care. The purpose of public hunts on the Schaleben tract is to provide compatible wildlife dependent public uses on refuge lands.

HUNT INFORMATION

Selected hunters are recommended to become familiar with the Refuge Special Regulations and the Tecolote tract prior to hunting. It is recommended that permit recipients (hunters) take advantage of the “scouting period”. The scouting period begins the Monday before an awarded hunt up to the day of the hunt. You may set up your hunting method during this scouting period. The Exotic only hunts begin on Thursday morning and end Sunday at sunset, State of Texas legal shooting hours for game animals applies.

Hunts are primitive and assistance from Refuge personnel to retrieve or track game will not be available; therefore, make harvest plans accordingly.

The nearest town with stores, restaurants and hotels is Raymondville (20 miles to the east) on Hwy 186, or Edinburg (25 miles to the south) on Highway 281.

All hunters must have a valid State of Texas hunting license.

Only hunters with permits are allowed on the Refuge; except a non-hunting adult supervising a youth hunter. Hunters must only use the means appropriate to the special hunt category for which they were drawn:
