Career FAQ (Game Warden Youth Involvement)

How much educational involvement do game wardens have with the youth in their communities?

Game wardens help in various ways to encourage hunting and fishing education and outdoor opportunities in their nearby communities every year. While there are areas with vast public hunting land in the state, there are other areas where those can be hard to come upon. Game wardens invest in developing and maintaining landowner relationships to establish youth hunting and fishing events on private land. Wardens enjoy speaking at school and civic events to teach hunter, angler and boater education. They also attend outdoor events to provide skilled instruction on everything from firearm safety, firearm shooting, fish identification, fishing instruction, boating safety and are proud to share the division's numerous Operation Game Thief educational trailers at civic events throughout the State of Texas.
